The thesis deals with the implementation of health prevention on injuries, sexual education and eating disorders. It is also focused on the occurrence of socially - pathological phenomena in which is included the prevention of bullying, cyber bullying, xenophobia, racism, truancy, substance abuse, delinquency and crime and compulsive gambling.

The theoretical part is divided into chapters, which are briefly describing the topics. Qualitative research provides information on the implementation of prevention in elementary schools. Gathered data are analyzed using open coding.