Sociologický časopis Czech Sociological Review

ISSN 0338-0788 (print), ISSN 1628-0788 (online)

Sociologický časopis Czech Sociological Review is a scholarly review that focuses on the field of sociological theory and methodology, the dissemination of research results, and the interpretation of sociological research. It concentrates on the development and education in the field of sociology and related social sciences, while simultaneously striving to help solve practical problems in Czech social and economic policy.

Manuscript Submission

The editors require three single copies, preferably double-sided, which do not state the name or workplace of the author. The accompanying letter should contain complete contact information, including address, telephone number and email address. The authors are also required to submit the manuscript in electronic format in Word, either on a floppy disk attached to the printed copies or by e-mail. The editorial review process is anonymous on both sides. The editors reserve the right to ensure the anonymity of the text's content, i.e. to eliminate any information or data that could facilitate identification of the author, before submitting the text to the review process. Submissions of a manuscript to another journal while it is under review by the editors of this journal is considered unethical.

Manuscript format: Along with the manuscript please submit an abstract (no more than twenty lines), the title of the article in English, and an alphabetical list of references for literature cited in the text. Brief information on the author should be attached separately. Bibliographic references must be complete and comply with SC/CSR standards. Manuscripts must be computer printed and meet Czech Standard (CSN) 840220. Manuscripts must be double-spaced, with 40 characters per line and 30 lines to an A4 page, or should use font size 12 and be double-spaced. The maximum length of research and methodological essays is 150 pages. Published articles will be indexed, abstracted in hard copy and in electronic form, reviewed by experts, and cited in the current issue.
