What is Etiquette?

Etiquette is a code of conduct and a set of societal rules that acts as a catalyst for positive human interactions. On the other hand, manners are behaviors that reflect a person's attitude. A key difference between etiquette and manners is that the former changes with a change in societal customs and norms, while the latter remains largely unchanged across communities.

Etiquette provides a structure within which good manners can flourish. It's good manners to follow proper etiquette. For example, etiquette may dictate the rules of talking to someone. In some cultures, this means introducing yourself properly to a stranger and shaking their hand. But in other cultures, shaking hands is frowned upon. Good manners will prompt you to say 'please' or 'thank you' when needed and not interrupt another person. These are universal courtesies.

Final slide: Reflection

“Difference is of the essence of humani Difference is an accident of birth, and it should therefore never be the source of hatred or conflict. The answer to difference is to respect it. Therein lies a most fundamental principle of peace:
respect for diversity.”
