

European Union Public Policy

Professor John Wilton

Lecture 9

Education policy

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

Erasmus Socrates programme

- designed to promote educational exchange of ideas, experiences and teaching processes
- but also to promote greater cultural exchange and understanding
- politically designed to assist E.U. integration

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

'Spillover' – between the development of E.U. common market and education and training = AGENDA-SETTING

- 1974 Social Action Programme

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

1976 resolution to Council of Ministers

- action programme in education

(= POLICY FORMULATION)

- 1) improved facilities for education and training;
- 2) closer relations between educational systems;
- 3) improved statistics on education;

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

- 4) greater co-operation between Member states in the field of higher education – covering recognition of qualifications and periods of study abroad;
- 5) the promotion of foreign language teaching;
- 6) the promotion of equal opportunities in access to education;
- 7) the need to address the problem of unemployment among young people (from an education and training perspective);

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

- 8) the need to address the educational needs of the children of migrants;
- 9) The need to address the preparation of young people for work, and the smooth transition from education to working life

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

1988 European Commission communication
'on education and training in the European Community'

- set out medium-term perspectives for education 1989-92
- stated need to create “an educational space for mobility and interchange”

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

- the right of education and training policy to be recognised as a necessary part of the E.U. agenda – to compliment the needs of the development of the Single Market (= Spillover)
- the right to recognition of some ‘equivalence of standards’

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

1991 European Commission memo on higher education
- referred to the “wider responsibilities of higher education institutions for maintaining, developing and transmitting the cultural heritage of Europe and its Member states and for mobilising the creativity of people to advance the boundaries of knowledge, in the humanities as well as in science and technology”

(COM(91) 349 final, 5 Nov. 1991, pp. 1-2)

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

- identified a number of factors influencing higher education in the Community:
 1. increasing pace of European integration and labour mobility;
 2. impact of scientific and technological advances for economic and daily life;
 3. enlargement of the Community and increasing opportunities for co-operation, partnership and mutual support

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

3 major dimensions of E.U. policy objectives on education and training

1. From economic viewpoint, aim was to promote quality education, vocational training and re-training designed to ensure supply of multi-skilled, flexible, mobile workers capable of operating on European scale;
2. From social perspective, E.U. seeking to secure equality of opportunity for young people to develop their talents and skills

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

3. from the cultural and political perspective – used as an ‘instrument’ of policy designed to facilitate and promote greater E.U. political integration and cultural understanding

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

1988 European Commission Communication
– guidelines for the medium term (1989-1992) on education and training formally recognised that:

“Blanket harmonisation or standardisation of the educational system is entirely undesirable”. (POLICY FORMULATION BASED ON ‘MUTUAL RECOGNITION’)

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

Instead, E.U. took as its objective:

“to improve the overall quality of educational provision by bringing the different systems into a long-term process of contact and co-operation ...”

AND simultaneously “avoiding unnecessary divergences which would otherwise impede the free movement of persons and ideas”.

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

End of 1980s, organisational instrument for “educational movement of peoples” – the European Community Action Scheme for the Mobility of University Students (ERASMUS)

(=POLICY IMPLEMENTATION)

1991 Trans-European Scheme for University Studies (TEMPUS) extended exchanges to Central and Eastern Europe

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

1995 SOCRATES programme

aim = to strengthen the European dimension of education at all levels:

- through the development of language learning;
- through the promotion of co-operation by encouraging exchanges;
- through the removal of obstacles to labour mobility by recognition of diplomas and periods of study abroad.

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

E.U. educational exchange programmes:

- Socrates
- Comenius
- Grundtvig
- Lingua
- Atlas

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

June 1999 – Bologna Declaration

(= POLICY FORMULATION)

- set out to increase the international competitiveness of European higher education by:
 1. adopting system of comparable degrees at undergraduate and graduate level;
 2. agreeing that undergraduate training should last minimum of 3 years, and should lead to qualification relevant to the European labour market;

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

June 1999 – Bologna Declaration

3. agreeing that graduate training should be to a Masters and/or Doctorate level;
4. advocating use of a system of credits to encourage student mobility, combined with access to study and training opportunities and related services

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

June 1999 – Bologna Declaration

Proposals and policies based upon:

- a) greater EU wide co-operation across the Member States on ‘quality assurance’ (monitoring of higher education standards)
- b) the development of comparable education criteria and methodologies, comparable curricula, and integrated programmes of study, training and research.

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

- 2001 EU Commission report on “concrete future objectives of education and training systems” (= POLICY FORMULATION)
- not advocate a common policy, but outlined “consistent and coherent approach for national policies on education in EU Member States”
 - report was to be implemented using ‘Open Method of Co-ordination’

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

2001 EU Commission report had 3 objectives:

1. to improve quality and effectiveness of education and training systems in EU;
2. to facilitate access to lifelong education and training;
3. to open up education and training systems to the wider world.

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

2001 EU Commission report 'policy targets':

1. reduce by 50 per cent the number of 18 to 24 year olds in EU with only lower-secondary education by 2010;
2. ensure wider internet access;
3. increase per capita investment in education and training;
4. encourage language acquisition;
5. encourage mobility of students, teachers, trainers and researchers.

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

2 level 'principle' process operating;

1. harmonisation of aims in E.U. education and training policy;

2. mutual recognition of diversity in education and training application

(based on common fundamental principle of 'European dimension of education')

European Union Public Policy

Lecture 9

‘Spillover’

- the economic needs of the E.U.

lead to

- social and cultural developments in education and training policy facilitate

- political aims (within E.U. integration project)