- ▣ Information Retrieval
- ▣ Information Processing
- ▣ Lifestyle

Perception of environment

- Extravert (E)
intensively perceive the surrounding area and is focused on contact with people and reality, love to talk and express their feelings.
- Introvert (I)
is able to concentrate on little things, and specially the ideas and feelings. Many do not seek contact with the surroundings, which they sometimes can be annoying and would rather listen than to engage in conversation. Sooner rather think of what they say, than to themselves hammered from disparate information.

Information Retrieval

- Senses (S, Sensing)
Senses prefer facts and current situation. They are more affinity with the fact things are used rather than to reflect on why and how they work.
- Intuition (N, Intuition)
Intuition favors ideas, theories and fantasies. Intuitives always like to do things differently, exploring what is going on why and how, and how it could do better. Rather than practice and what is the future and attracts a variety of abstract theory.

Information Processing

- Thinking (T, Thinking)
Better data and work with numbers than with feelings and people are stubborn and negligent. Thinking leads to better problem-solving and is based on numbers, facts and logic - true - false, if - then.
- Feeling (F, Feeling)
Feeling decide according to the sense of things - "more or less, the better - worse". Emotionally people prefer the establishment of agreements often are empathetic and like to make people happy.

Lifestyle

- Reasoning (J, Judging)
People with a dominant reasoning tend to the gradual solution and try to finish things quickly. They plan before the trip all schedule, including visits of the monuments and pre-booking a hotel.
- Perception (P, Perceiving)
People sentient rely on subjective judgments and leave all options open. They thrive best under pressure, under pressure of time, now is the last chance to do something. When inferring a trip well thought through, they are perceiving the exact opposite. In the morning they wake up, they take a trip and everything will be solved when it is come.
