Week 4: Portraits and Proportions of the Face

Helena Lukášová, Hana Pokojná

Types of portraits

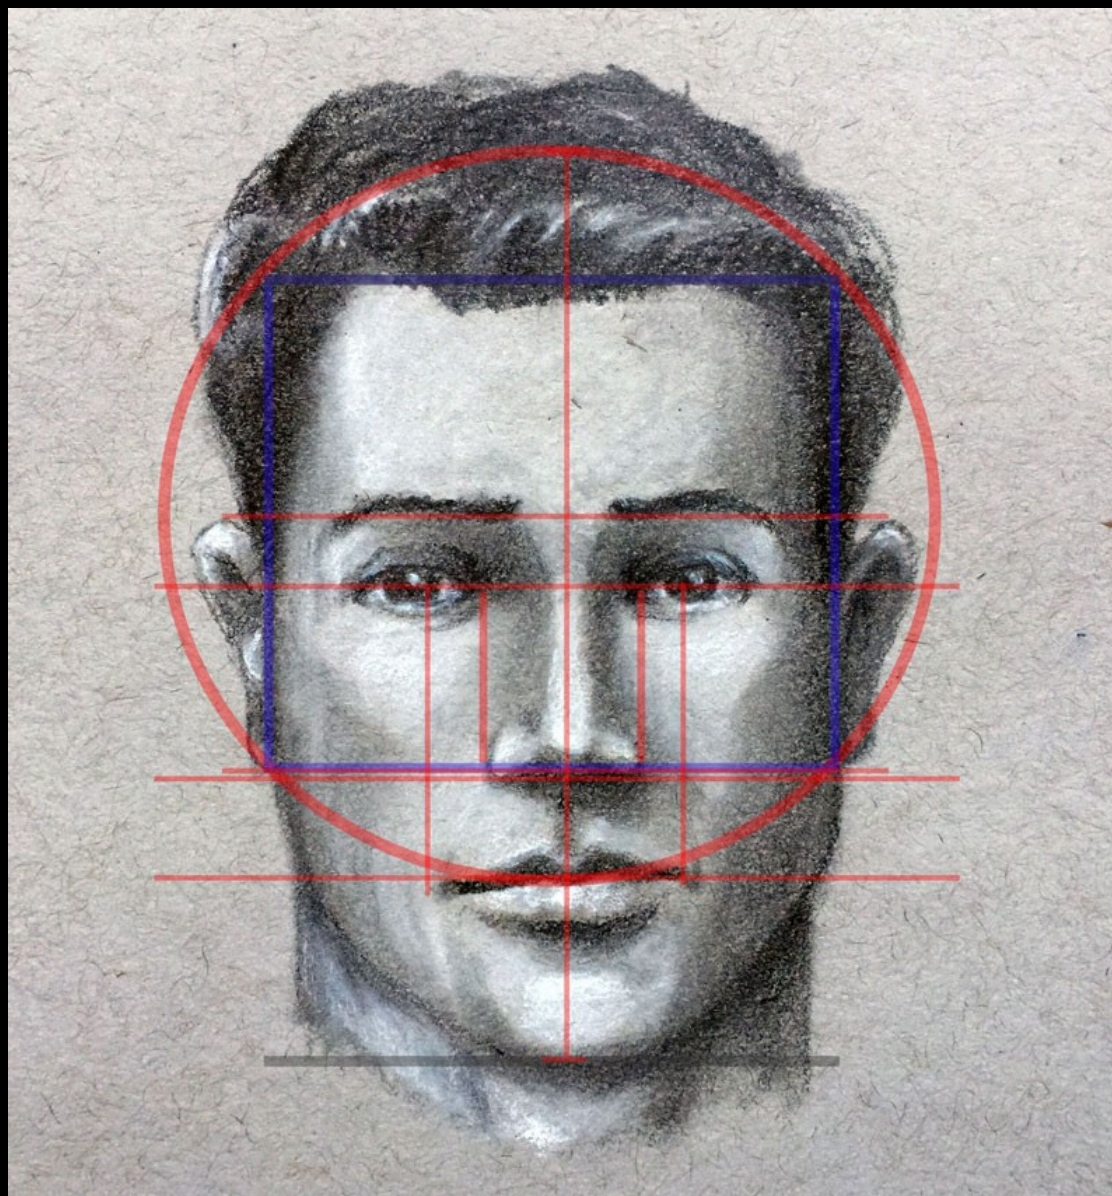

A face

From the front

Easier and straight forward

Vertical symmetry

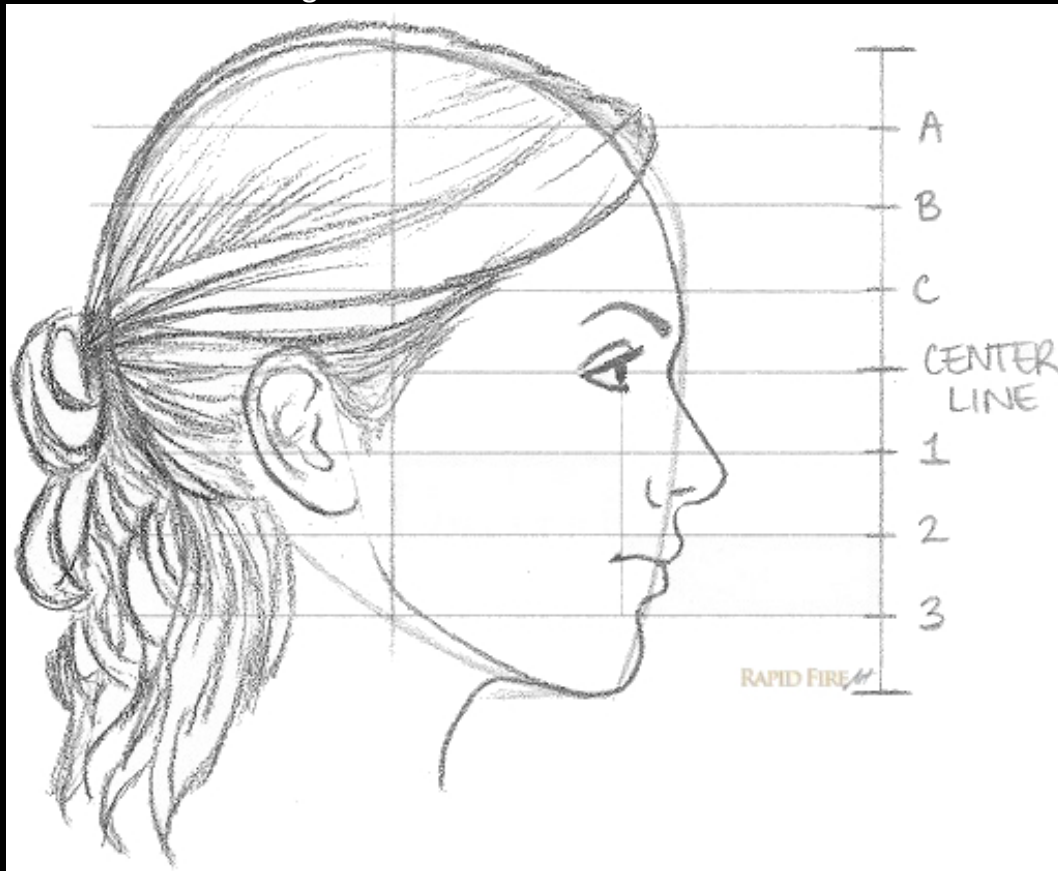

Profile

From the side

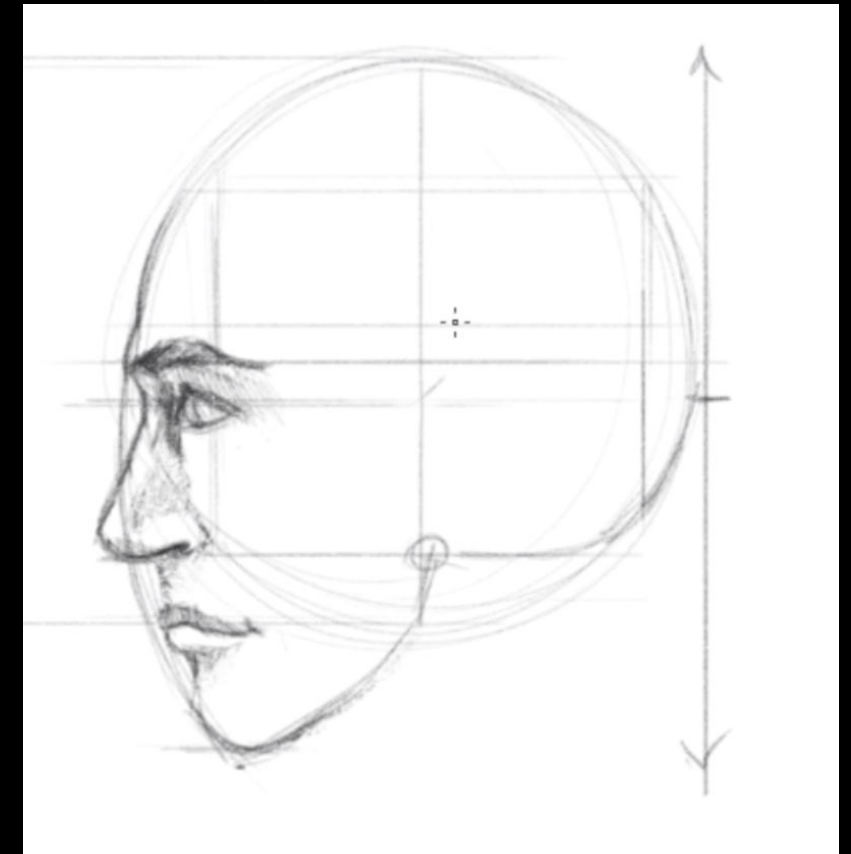

Easier and straight forward

Horizontal lines for guidance

Be careful about cerebellum, it's like a ball and protrudes from the neck

Proportions don't change when you change the angle.
A combination of the front view and a side profile is the 4/3 view.

3/4 view

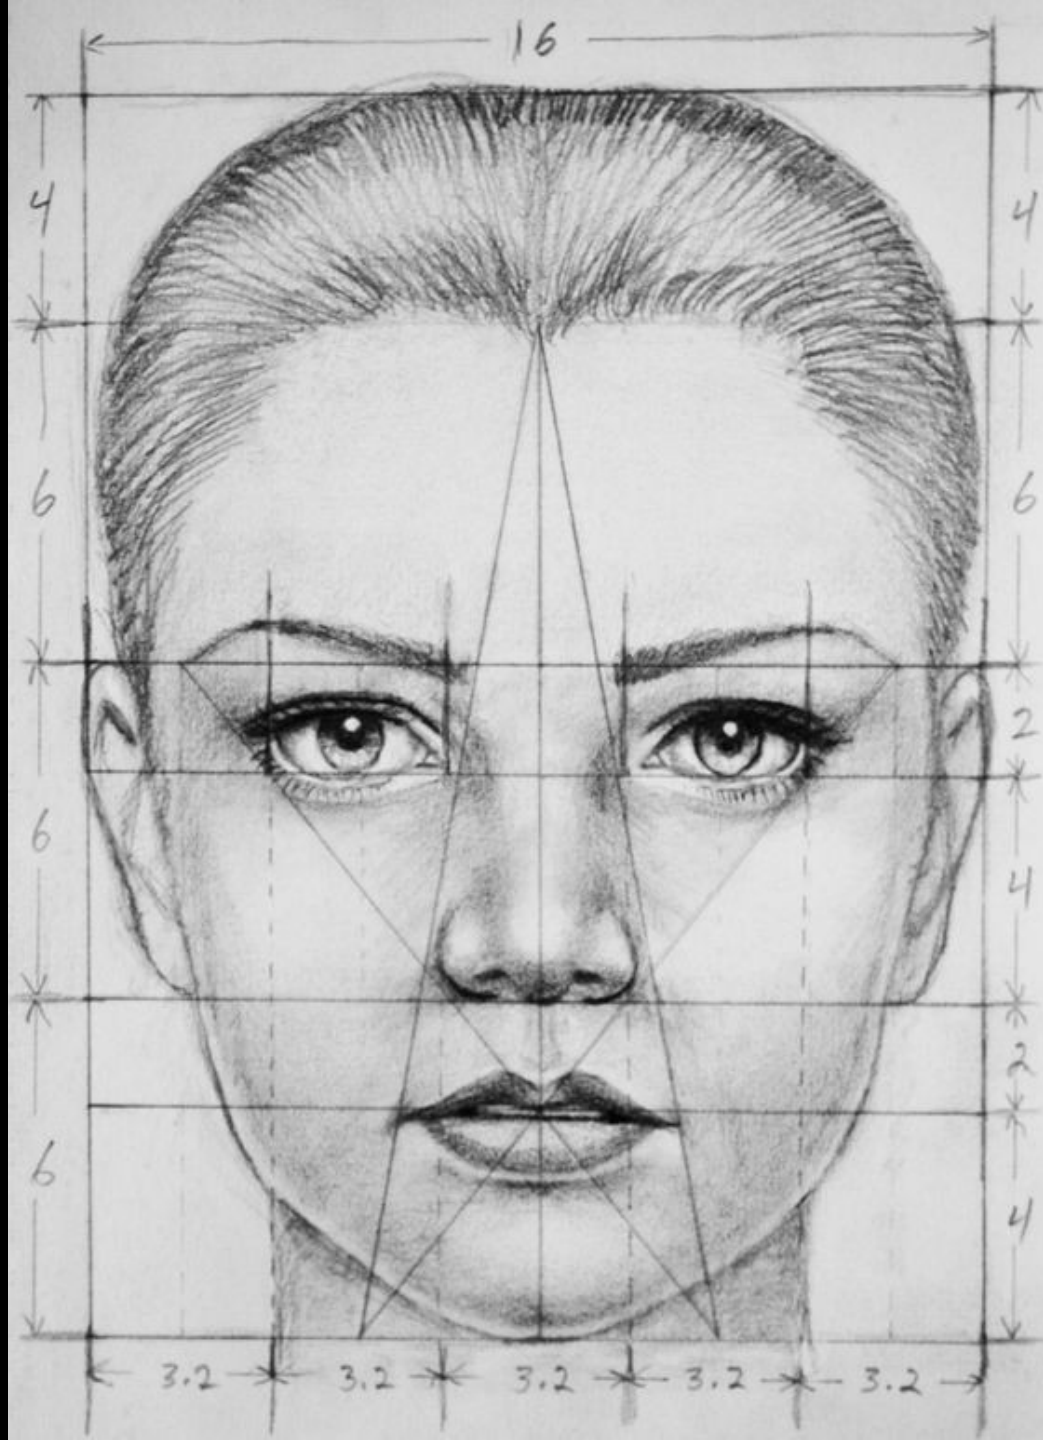

More difficult because some parts are not visible/ only partly visible

Think in planes to keep angle correct

Measurements: Portrait

- Divide the face in half vertically: symmetry
- Horizontal line in the middle: goes through the middle of the eyes
- Horizontally, can be divided into 3 equal parts:
 - 1) chin to tip of the nose
 - 2) tip of the nose to between eyebrows
 - 3) middle of eyebrows to start of hairline

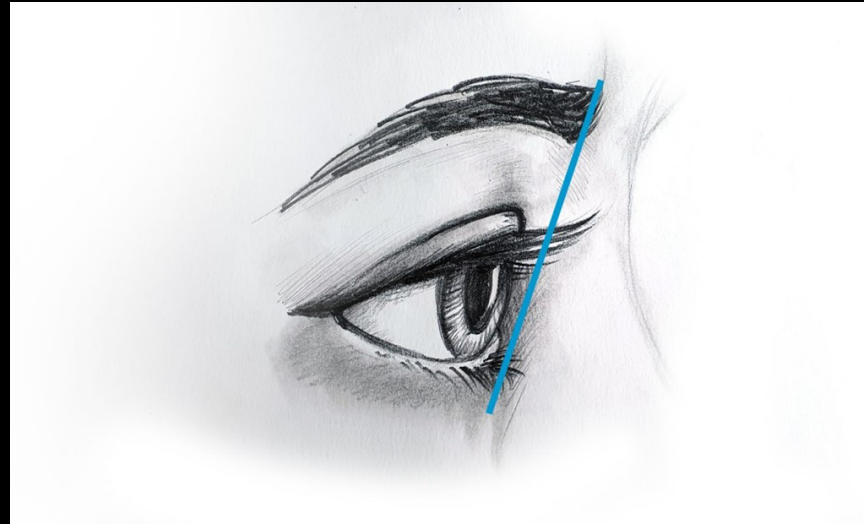

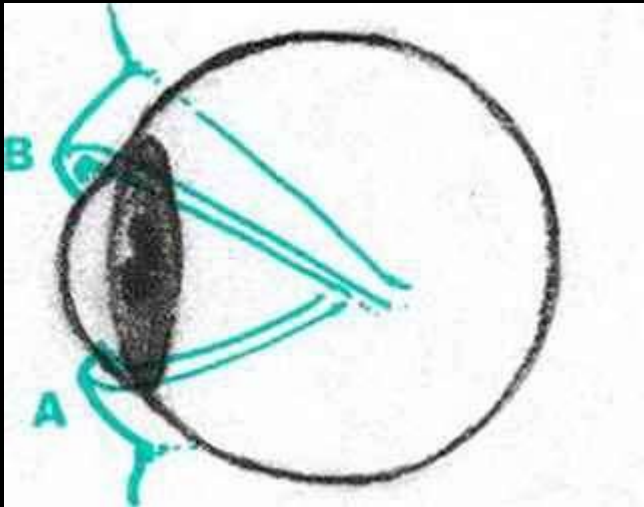

Eyes

- Eyes are one width of the eye apart

Eyes: side view

Ears

- Ears are located between the eyebrow line downwards to the tip of the nose

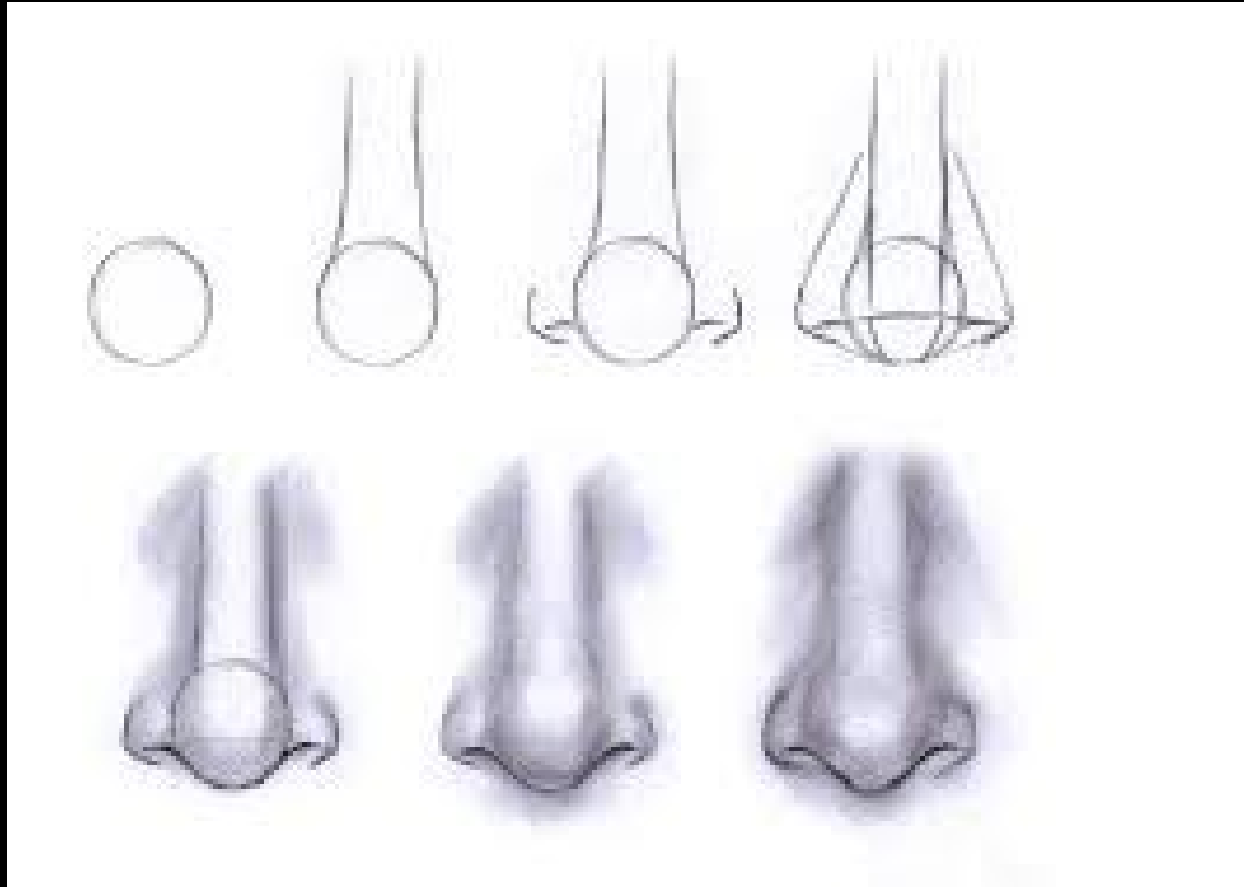

Nose

- Corners of the eyes (inside)- let down vertical mark to mark the outer part of the nostrils/ nose width

Nose: simple shapes

Mouth

- The opening of the mouth is on the line of the 1st third from the top. Meaning that one third above forms the upper lip and space between the tip of the nose. The second third goes to the crevice on the chin. And the last third goes from the crevice on the chin to the tip of the chin.
- The width of the mouth corners, where the two lips meet, are the horizontal lines from the middle of the iris of the eyes
