

Sample biography

Angela D. Nichols is a PhD student at the University of North Texas. Her current research focuses on the processes of transitional justice in post-conflict societies and their impact on peace duration, as well as the onset and prevention of geno/politicides. Since 2015, she has been a teaching assistant for two courses (titles) where she is responsible for leading seminars and grading student assignments.