That brings me to the end of my presentation. Let me just run over the key points again. Very briefly, there are three. First, socio-biology in contrast to ecology, second to economy, and third to political science. From what you have heard, there are some very good reasons to see socio-biology as any treatment of social phenomena that basically draws on neo-Darwinist theory. At this point, I'd like to leave you with the following thought: remember that politics, ecology, as well as economy are part of life, and biology is the study of life. In my opinion, the only possibility is to accept the existence of socio-biology as an equal to other social sciences. Thank you for your attention and now, if you have any questions, I'd be pleased to answer them.
