

SEMINAR 13B – PREPOSITIONS

- prepositions are a closed class of items connecting two units in a sentence and specifying a relationship between them e.g. I don't like to drink out of a cracked cup. (the link is to the verb phrase)

He was very grateful for her help. (the link is to an adjective phrase)
The elderly man in the raincoat looks ill. (the link is to a noun phrase)
- a prepositional phrase may act as a postmodifier in noun-phrase structure, or as an adverbial e.g. In a few minutes, we'll know the result of the blood test.
- prepositions may be: a) simple – e.g. at, or, down, during, without, etc.
b) complex – e.g. owing to, by means of, as a result of, etc.
- the complements of prepositions are usually noun phrases, but they can also be non-finite (-ing) clauses, or nominal (wh-) clauses
e.g. near the small town from scrutinizing the results from where I was sitting

Deferred prepositions

- prepositions are normally followed by their complements, but in certain cases this is not possible, for example
 - a) passive constructions – e.g. We have paid for the car. → The car has been paid for.
 - b) the prepositional complement is at the beginning of the sentence
e.g. It is unpleasant to work with that man. → That man is unpleasant to work with.
It is not worth listening to his advice. → His advice is not worth listening to.
 - c) in questions – e.g. What are you looking at?
Who is she talking about?
Who did you sell your house to?
 - d) in relative clauses – e.g. The building (that) you are standing in front of was designed by Wren.

Simple prepositions

- monosyllabic items – at, for, in, on, to, with; typically unstressed (!) except when they are deferred:
compare: e.g. She looked at me. /ət/ v. What are you looking at? /ət/
- other simple prep. of more than one syllable: inside, during, despite, except

Complex prepositions

- owing to, away from, because of, etc.
- in charge of, by means of, at variance with, in addition to, as a result of, etc.

Prepositional meanings

- positive v. negative (e.g. off = not on)
- destination (=movement to an intended location) v. position (static location)
- dimension types – e.g. My coat is in the wardrobe.
They were alone on the tennis court.

I. SPACE

a) Position and direction

- positive v. negative

e.g. Jack ran to the corner and then stood at the corner. (positive prepositions)
v. Kate moved from Bloomsbury and enjoys living away from the city centre.
(negative prep.)

- a point on the route (or institution) v. residence

e.g. Does this train stop at Lincoln? v. I've never lived in Lincoln.
Our daughter is at Oxford studying art. v. They didn't live in Oxford.

- surface v. the notion of enclosing e.g. They were rowing on Lake Windermere. v. I was swimming in Lake Windermere.

I'll lie on the bed for a few minutes. v. There was a child asleep in the bed.

b) Relative position

- rather than absolute position, many prepositions indicate the position of something relative to the position of something else:

e.g. The police station is opposite my house.
My house is opposite the police station.

- some prepositions form antonymic pairs (one is the opposite of the other)

e.g. above v. below
over v. under (=directly above, directly below) in front of v. behind before v. after

- like under, there are the less common beneath (formal) and underneath

- close to and near to can have comparisons:

e.g. Please move this desk close(r) to the wall.
Please move this desk near(er) (to) the wall.

- between (two objects, groups of objects) . among / amid / amidst

- esp. in BrE, about is like around: e.g. She put her arms about him.

c) Passage

- the notion of passage combines position and motion, disregarding destination
e.g. I love walking through woods in spring.
- other prep. used for passage: by, over, under, across, past

Compare:

on the grass v. in the grass
across the grass v. through the grass

Be careful as you drive round corners.
The children were playing around the park.

d) Metaphorical extension with spatial prepositions

- with many spatial prepositions, metaphor enables similar but abstract relations to be expressed

e.g. in the room : in this book, in some difficulty out of the bottle : out of danger, out of the competition beneath the branches : beneath contempt under the floorboards : under suspicion up the hill : up the social scale downhill : down market
beyond the post office : beyond endurance over the mountain : (she's getting) over her illness from Boston to Bangor : from generation to generation between the trees : between ourselves through the tunnel : through the ordeal

II. TIME

a) Time position

- the question is When? – at, on, in

- 'at' - points of time: e.g. The film begins at 7.30.
What are you doing at the weekend?
I saw her at Christmas.
... at that time / at noon / at midnight

- 'in' - time is regarded as a period
e.g. In the evening, I listened to music.
Where did he live in his childhood?
I saw her in March / in 1998.

- 'on' - in expressions referring to days:
e.g. We can come on Monday / on Tuesday afternoon.
I was born on July 12th.

Note: I cannot sleep at night. v. We heard her coughing several times in the night.

b) Time duration

- the question is How long? - for e.g. We stayed in a rented cottage for the summer.
- throughout and all through – express emphasis on the duration
e.g. Try to stay alert throughout the entire ceremony.
- during indicates a stretch of time within which a more specific duration can be indicated:
e.g. During the summer, we stayed in a rented cottage for a month.
- over – e.g. stay overnight, over the weekend, over the Christmas period
- from ... to... - reference to the beginning and ending e.g. The office will be open from Monday to Friday. (also: between Monday and Friday)
- duration specifying only a starting point (or only a terminal point) is expressed by phrases with: by, before, from, after, since, till, until, up to e.g. She will be here by Friday night.
She will not be here before Friday night.
I worked from 8 o'clock (onwards).
He did not set out till / until Monday afternoon.
You can stay here till / until / up to lunch time.

Note: 'prior to' and 'in advance of' can replace 'before' in formal style

III. CAUSE and PURPOSE

- 'cause, reason, motive' - because of, on account of, for, out of, etc.
e.g. He lost his job because of his laziness.
She was fined for dangerous driving.
The plane crashed through some navigational error.
- the notion of 'motive' shades into 'purpose, goal and target' - for all of these prepositions for is common:
e.g. They are appealing for donations.
We had better set out for home.
She is applying for a better job.
He built a play-pen for the little girl.
- 'at' - the goal or target is usually viewed with hostility:
e.g. He shouted at them. (=he was angry) v. He shouted to them. (=called) but in other cases it is quite neutral: e.g. She smiled at the child.
She laughed at the idea.

Note: X lends st to Y v. Y *borrow*s st from X

'as' = in the role of: e.g. As a subscriber, I ought to have been consulted.

IV. From MEANS to STIMULUS (means, instrument, agency, stimulus)

- the question is How? – by (means), with (instrument)
e.g. I go to work by car.
Please send this to the London office by telex.
She won the match with her fast service.
He managed to open the door without a key.
- the agent is expressed by the preposition by:
e.g. This picture was painted by Degas.
I was bitten by a neighbour's dog.
- 'stimulus' and 'reaction' are chiefly expressed by at, but also others, e.g. about, in, of, to e.g. I am surprised at her attitude.
I was pleased about the choice of the date.
Are you interested in astronomy?
I think he is jealous of her.
To me, her proposal is broadly acceptable.
- with means of transport, 'on' + article can be used instead of 'by' + zero:
e.g. I often go to work on the 8.15 train.

V. ACCOMPANIMENT

- with = in the company of v. without

e.g. I hope you will come to dinner with your husband.
For once, Jill went without her husband.
What will you drink with your meal?
I cannot concentrate without silence.
- the accompaniment may become a circumstance and the phrase will then connote 'manner':
e.g. He entered the room with a worried look.
- 'manner' is also expressed with (un)like:
e.g. Fred, (un)like his brother, is trusted by few.

VI. CONCESSION and other relations

- 'concession' - is expressed by prepositions: in spite of, despite, notwithstanding (fml), and informal for all, with all:
e.g. The article is being published in spite of her disapproval. / for all her disapproval.
- 'exception' - the chief prepositions are: except (for), excepting, with the exception of, excluding, apart from, aside from, but e.g. Except for the weather, our stay in Scotland was enjoyable.
Everyone seemed tired but me.

- 'addition' - is expressed by: besides, as well as, in addition to e.g. The orchestra was disappointing as well as the soloist.
- 'negative condition' - is expressed by: but for e.g. But for me, the case would have been lost. (i.e. If it hadn't been for me)
- 'respect' - is expressed by: as for, as to, about, on the matter of, concerning, as regards, with regard to, with respect to e.g. Now, about your application, are you sure you would like a job of this kind?
- as for is often used to indicate a change of topic:
e.g. The coat is splendid but as for the hat I don't think it suits you.

Modification

- both prepositions and prepositional adverbs can be modified in terms of 'measure' and 'degree' by being accompanied by intensifiers:

e.g. She arrived shortly after ten.
She arrived at ten or shortly after.
He expected to be well ahead of Compton but he finished in fact just behind.
