Model composition

I met Ann at grammar school five years ago. We have been friends ever since.

Ann has straight blond hair, a broad forehead, a turned up nose and small ears. She has a kind, intelligent round face with lively blue eyes.

Regarding her character and personality, she is almost always cheerful but can be serious as well. She is interested in science and computers; in fact she has been studying computer science at a college. Whenever you meet her, she enthusiastically tells you about the latest scientific discoveries. Although she is intelligent, you never feel inferior. She is a good listener and has often given me good advice. She is very generous. For example, she once gave me a very expensive set of books. She is reliable and a true friend.

At her house you always get a generous welcome. However, she is rather untidy and you have to put up with piles of books and papers everywhere. This doesn't matter, because Ann's friendship is worth more than a tidy room.
