

Science and Innovation Communication in Estonia

Lecture 4 of course ‘The innovative Estonia’

Arko Olesk
Tallinn
University/Postimees

History

- 1766 – „Lühhike öppetus“
- 1848 – „Ma-ilm ja mõnda“
- 1966 – „Teadus“ society
- 1967 – „Horisont“ magazine

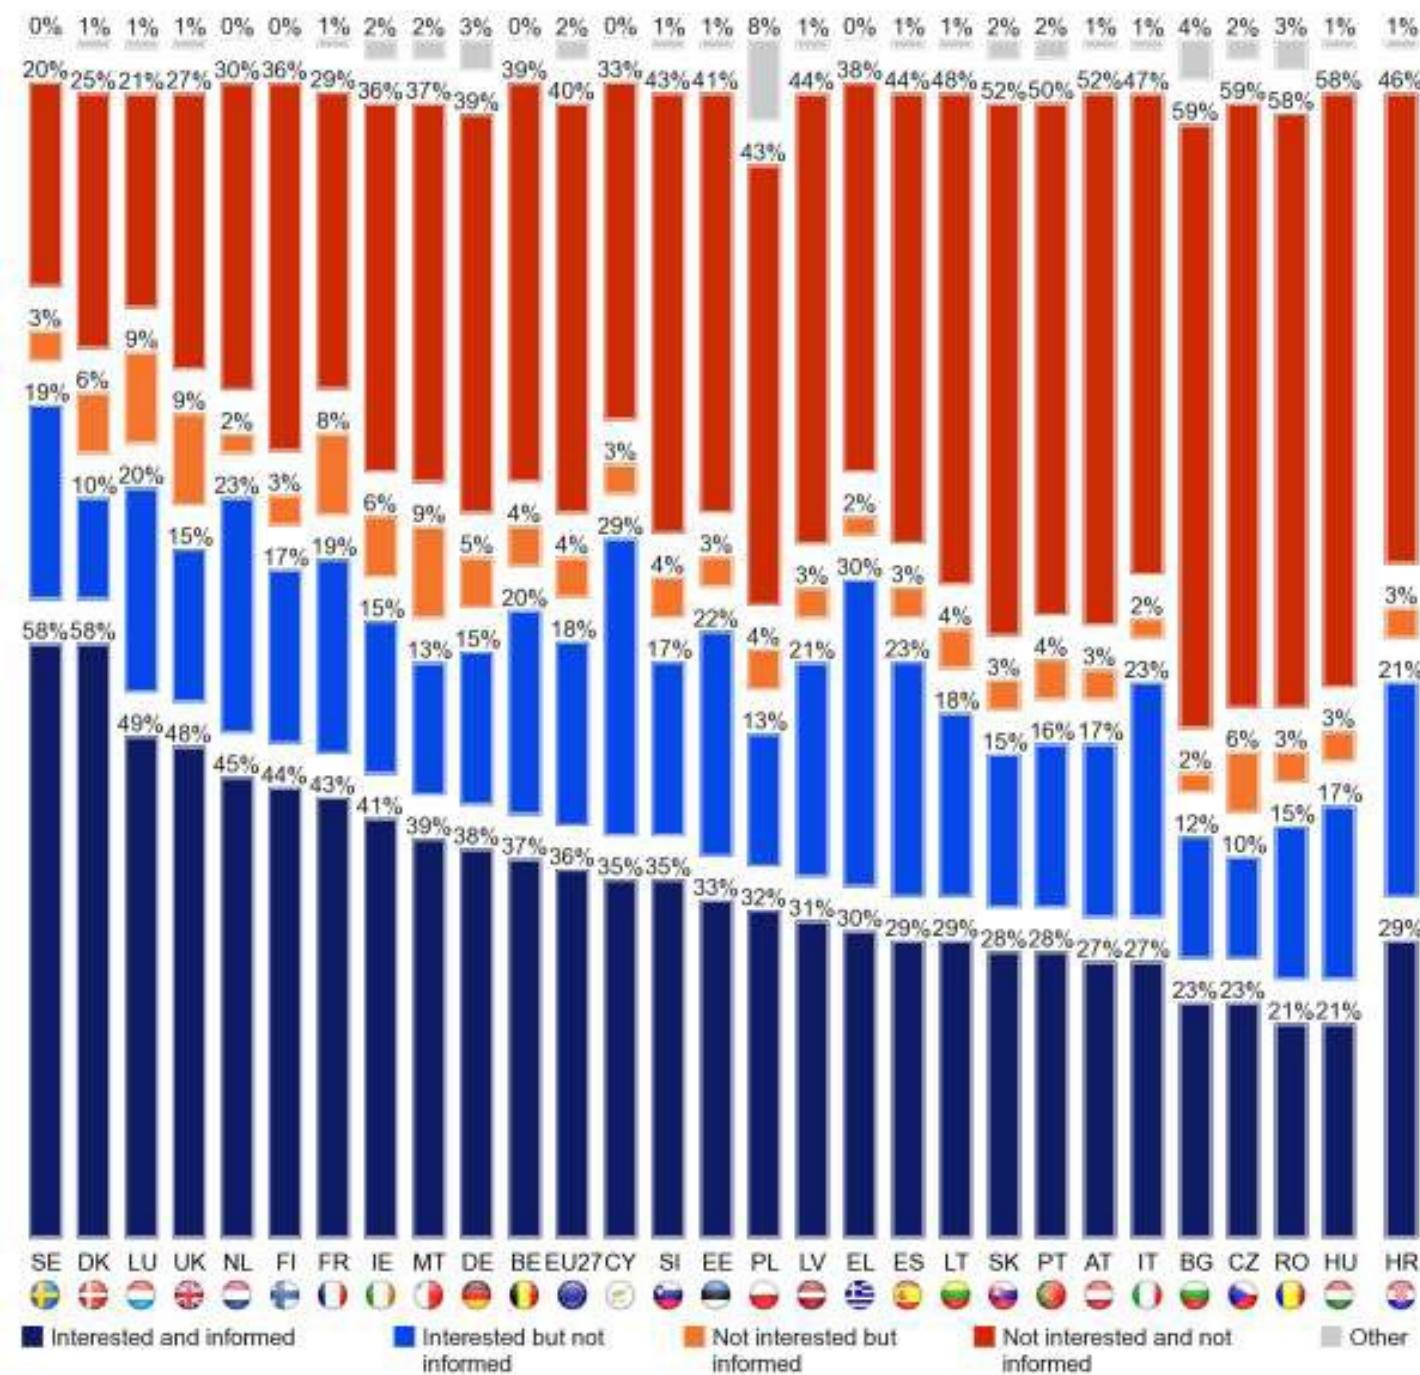

Why science communication?

- Alienation of scientists
- Critique and hostility towards science
- Less media attention
- Lack of knowledge
- Widespread esoteric beliefs
- Shrinking number of science students

QD2T. Interest for and information about developments in science and technology

Eurobarometer 401 (2013)

Era of professionalization

- Science Bus – 2005
- First annual science communication conferences – 2008
- National science communication program TeaMe – 2009
 - new study materials for science classes
 - production of two TV-shows
 - science communication training for scientists and journalists
 - travel grants for science communicators
 - National Year of Science – 2011-12
- Association of Science Journalists 2007
- National Science Festival (Night of Researchers) 2006

Interactive science centre AHHAA (1997/2011)

Focus on young people

- Robotex
- Programming
- National support schemes

Science in media

- Horisont, Imeline Teadus
- ERR Novaator
- 3 weekly radio programs
- Daily
- Rake

Scientists

- EstCube example
- 1 minute lectures
- „Buses“

