- I myself guessed it to be so, partly because they are dark-skinned and woolly-haired; though that indeed goes for nothing, seeing that other peoples, too, are such; but my better proof was that the Colchians and Egyptians and Ethiopians are the only nations that have from the first practised circumcision.

- They keep the oracles of their fathers, and add none others to them.
- For this reason no Egyptian man or woman will kiss a Greek man, or use a knife, or a spit, or a caldron belonging to a Greek, or taste the flesh of an unblemished ox that has been cut up with a Greek knife.

- The Egyptians shun the use of Greek customs, and (to speak generally) the customs of any other men whatever.
- During the course of excavations, Necos ceased from the work, being stayed by a prophetic utterance that he was toiling beforehand for the barbarian. The Egyptians call all men of other languages barbarian.

- As the Egyptians have a climate peculiar to themselves, and their river is different in its nature from all other rivers, so have they made all their customs and laws of a kind contrary for the most part to those of all other men. Among them, the women buy and sell, the men abide at home and weave; and whereas in weaving all others push the woof upwards, the Egyptians push it downwards. Men carry burdens on their heads, women on their shoulders. Women make water standing, men sitting. They relieve nature indoors, and eat out of doors in the streets, giving the reason, that things unseemly but necessary should be done in secret, things not unseemly should be done openly. No woman is dedicated to the service of any god or goddess; men are dedicated to all deities male or female. Sons are not compelled against their will to support their parents, but daughters must do so though they be unwilling.

- Everywhere else, priests of the gods wear their hair long; in Egypt they are shaven. With all other men, in mourning for the dead those most nearly concerned have their heads shaven; Egyptians are shaven at other times, but after a death they let their hair and beard grow. The Egyptians are the only people who keep their animals with them in the house. Whereas all others live on wheat and barley, it is the greatest disgrace for an Egyptian so to live; they make food from a coarse grain which some call spelt. They knead dough with their feet, and gather mud and dung with their hands.

- The Egyptians and those who have learnt it from them are the only people who practise circumcision. Every man has two garments, every woman only one. The rings and sheets of sails are made fast elsewhere outside the boat, but inside it in Egypt. The Greeks write and calculate by moving the hand from left to right; the Egyptians do contrariwise; yet they say that their way of writing is towards the right, and the Greek way towards the left. They use two kinds of writing; one is called sacred, the other common.

- They are beyond measure religious, more than any other nation; and these are among their customs: ... Their religious observances are, one may say, innumerable. ... They may not eat fish. The Egyptians sow no beans in their country; if any grow, they will not eat them either raw or cooked; the priests cannot endure even to see them, considering beans an unclean kind of pulse.

- After the reign of the priest of Hephaestus the Egyptians were made free. But they could never live without a king, so they divided Egypt into twelve portions and set up twelve kings.

- And it is apparently on these grounds that the Egyptians prostrate themselves before their kings and honour them as being in truth very gods, holding, on the one hand, that it was not without the influence of some divine providence that these men have attained to the supreme power, and feeling, also, that such as have the will and the strength to confer the greatest benefactions share in the divine nature.

- For his predecessors in power had consistently closed Egypt to strangers, either killing or enslaving any who touched its shores. 11 Indeed, it was because of the objection to strangers on the part of the people that the impiety of Busiris became a byword among the Greeks, although this impiety was not actually such as it was described, but was made into a fictitious myth because of the exceptional disrespect of the Egyptians for ordinary customs.

HISTORIE - NEGATIVNÍ

- D.S. 1.45 Μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα κατασταθέντος βασιλέως Βουσίριδος καὶ τῶν τούτου πάλιν ἐκγόνων ὀκτώ, τὸν τελευταῖον ὁμώνυμον ὄντα τῷ πρώτῳ φασὶ κτίσαι τὴν ὑπὸ μὲν τῶν Αἰγυπτίων καλουμένην Διὸς πόλιν τὴν μεγάλην, ὑπὸ δὲ τῶν Ἐλλήνων Θήβας.
- Subsequently, when Busiris became king and his descendants in turn, eight in name, the last of the line, who bore the same name as the first, founded, they say, the city which the Egyptians call Diospolis the Great, though the Greeks call it Thebes.

HISTORIE - BÚSÍRIS

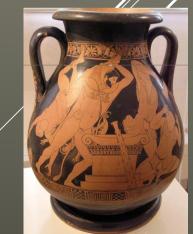

- Hdt. 2.45 λέγουσι δὲ πολλὰ καὶ ἄλλα άνεπισκἑπτως οὶ Ἐλληνες, εύἡθης δὲ αύτῶν καὶ ὅδε ὁ μῦθος ἐστὶ τὸν περὶ τοῦ Ἡρακλἑος λέγουσι, ὡς αὐτὸν ἀπικόμενον ἐς Αἴγυπτον στέψαντες οἱ Αἰγὑπτιοι ὑπὸ πομπῆς ἐξῆγον ὡς θὐσοντες τῷ Διἰ: τὸν δὲ τἑως μὲν ἡσυχἰην ἔχειν, ἐπεὶ δὲ αὐτοῦ πρὸς τῷ βωμῷ κατάρχοντο, ἐς ἀλκὴν τραπόμενον πάντας σφἑας καταφονεῦσαι.
- And the Greeks say many other illconsidered things, too; among them, this is a silly story which they tell about Heracles: that when he came to Egypt, the Egyptians crowned him and led him out in a procession to sacrifice him to Zeus; and for a while (they say) he followed quietly, but when they started in on him at the altar, he resisted and killed them all.

BÚSÍRIS

- Apollod. 2.5.11 μετὰ Λιβύην δὲ Αἴγυπτον διεξήει. ταύτης έβασἰλευε Βούσιρις Ποσειδῶνος παῖς καὶ Λυσιανάσσης τῆς Ἐπάφου. οὐτος τοὺς ξἑνους ἔθυεν ἐπὶ βωμῷ Διὸς κατά τι λόγιον: ἐννἑα γὰρ ἕτη ἀφορία τὴν Αἴγυπτον κατἑλαβε, Φρασίος δὲ ἑλθὼν ἐκ Κύπρου, μάντις τὴν ἐπιστήμην, ἔφη τὴν ἀφορίαν παύσασθαι ἐὰν ξἑνον ἄνδρα τῷ Διὶ σφάξωσι κατ΄ ἔτος. Βούσιρις δὲ ἐκεῖνον πρῶτον σφάξας τὸν μάντιν τοὺς κατιόντας ξἑνους ἕσφαζε. συλληφθεὶς οὖν καὶ Ἡρακλῆς τοῖς βωμοῖς προσεφἑρετο τὰ δὲ δεσμὰ διαρρήξας τὸν τε Βούσιριν καὶ τὸν ἐκείνου παῖδα Ἀμφιδάμαντα ἀπἑκτεινε.
- After Libya he traversed Egypt. That country was then ruled by Busiris,⁸ a son of Poseidon by Lysianassa, daughter of Epaphus. This Busiris used to sacrifice strangers on an altar of Zeus in accordance with a certain oracle. For Egypt was visited with dearth for nine vears, and Phrasius, a learned seer who had come from Cyprus, said that the dearth would cease if they slaughtered a stranger man in honor of Zeus every year. Busiris began by slaughtering the seer himself and continued to slaughter the strangers who landed. So Hercules also was seized and haled to the altars, but he burst his bonds and slew both Busiris and his son Amphidamas.

- They were all given up to the populace, who bit, and stabbed them, and knocked out their eyes, and, as soon as any one of them fell, tore him limb from limb, until they had utterly annihilated them all: for the savagery of the Egyptians when their passions are roused is indeed terrible.

- For that we who are Romans and lords of the greatest and best portion of the world should be despised and trodden under foot by an Egyptian woman is unworthy of our fathers, ...Would not all those who have performed the exploits I have named grieve mightily if they should learn that we had succumbed to an accursed woman?

KLEOPATRA

- C.D. 50.24.6–7, ὦ Ἡρἀκλεις, Άλεξανδρεῖς τε καὶ Αἰγὑπτιοι ὄντες 'τἰ γὰρ ἂν ἄλλο τις αὐτοὺς χεῖρον ἣ άληθἑστερον εἰπεῖν ἔχοι;' καὶ τὰ μὲν ἑρπετὰ καὶ τἆλλα θηρία ὥσπερ τινὰς θεοὺς θεραπεὑοντες, τὰ δὲ σώματα τὰ σφἑτερα ἐς δόξαν άθανασίας ταριχεὑοντες, καὶ θρασὑνασθαι μὲν προπετἑστατοι άνδρίσασθαι δὲ άσθενἑστατοι ὄντες, καὶ τὸ μἑγιστον γυναικὶ άντ' άνδρὸς δουλεὑοντες,
- are Alexandrians and Egyptians (what worse or what truer name could one apply to them?), who worship reptiles and beasts as gods, who embalm their own bodies to give them the semblance of immortality, 7 who are most reckless in effrontery but most feeble in courage, and who, worst of all, are slaves to a woman and not to a man,

KLEOPATRA, EGYPT, ALEXANDRIE

- C.D. 39.58.1–2. πρός δὲ δὴ πόλεμον τά τε δεινὰ αύτοῦ φλαυρότατοἰ είσι, καἰπερ ἐν ταῖς στάσεσι, πλείσταις δὴ καὶ μεγίσταις παρ' αύτοῖς γιγνομέναις, διὰ φόνων τε άεὶ χωροῦντες καὶ τὸ ζῆν παρ' ούδὲν πρὸς τὴν αὐτίκα φιλονεικίαν τιθἑμενοι, άλλὰ καὶ ὥσπερ τι τῶν άρἰστων ἡ ἀναγκαιοτάτων τὸν ἐν αύταῖς ὅλεθρον διώκοντες.
- For the Alexandrines are most ready to assume a bold front everywhere and to speak out whatever may occur to them, 2 but for war and its terrors they are utterly useless. This is true in spite of the fact that in seditions, which with them are very numerous and very serious, they always become involved in slaughter, setting no value upon life as compared with the rivalry of the moment, but pursuing destruction in such quarrels as if it were one of the best and dearest prizes.

ALEXANDRIE

- Tac. Hist. 1.11. Aegyptum copiasque, quibus coerceretur, iam inde a divo Augusto equites Romani obtinent loco regum: ita visum expedire, provinciam aditu difficilem, annonae fecundam, superstitione ac lascivia discordem et mobilem, insciam legum, ignaram magistratuum, ...
- Egypt, with the troops to keep it in order, has been managed from the time of the deified Augustus by Roman knights in place of their former kings. It had seemed wise to keep thus under the direct control of the imperial house a province which is difficult of access, productive of great harvests, but given to civil strife and sudden disturbances because of the fanaticism and superstition of its inhabitants, ignorant as they are of laws and unacquainted with civil magistrates.

EGYPT

- ► Tac. Hist. 4.81
- e plebe Alexandrina quidam oculorum tabe notus genua eius advolvitur, remedium caecitatis exposcens gemitu, monitu Serapidis dei, quem dedita superstitionibus gens ante alios colit; precabaturque principem ut genas et oculorum orbis dignaretur respergere oris excremento.
- One of the common people of Alexandria, well known for his loss of sight, threw himself before Vespasian's knees, praying him with groans to cure his blindness, being so directed by the god Serapis, whom this most superstitious of nations worships before all others; and he besought the emperor to deign to moisten his cheeks and eyes with his spittle.

EGYPT

- Cic. N.D. 1.16.43 Cum poetarum autem errore coniungere licet portenta magorum Aegyptiorumque in eodem genere dementiam, tum etiam vulgi opiniones, quae in maxima inconstantia veritatis ignoratione versantur.
- With the errors of the poets may be classed the monstrous doctrines of the magi and the insane mythology of Egypt, and also the popular beliefs, which are a mere mass of inconsistencies sprung from ignorance.

- Cic. N.D. 1.29.81 at non Aegyptii nec Syri nec fere cuncta barbaria; firmiores enim videas apud eos opiniones esse de bestiis quibusdam quam apud nos de sanctissimis templis et simulacris deorum.
- But they are not so known to the Egyptians or Syrians, or any almost of the uncivilized races. Among these you will find a belief in certain animals more firmly established than is reverence for the holiest sanctuaries and images of the gods with us.

- Cic. N.D. 1.36.10. ipsi qui inridentur Aegyptii nullam beluam nisi ob aliquam utilitatem quam ex ea caperent consecraverunt; velut ibes maximam vim serpentium conficiunt.
- Even the Egyptians, whom we laugh at, deified animals solely on the score of some utility which they derived from them; for instance, the ibis, being a tall bird with stiff legs and a long horny beak, destroys a great quantity of snakes:

- Cic. Tusc. 27.78 Aegyptiorum morem quis ignorat? quorum inbutae mentes pravitatis erroribus quamvis carnificinam prius subierint quam ibim aut aspidem aut faelem aut canem aut corcodillum violent, quorum etiamsi inprudentes quippiam fecerint, poenam nullam recusent.
- > Who is there who is unacquainted with the customs of the Egyptians? Their minds being tainted by pernicious opinions, they are ready to bear any torture, rather than hurt an ibis, a snake, a cat, a dog, or a crocodile: and should anyone inadvertently have hurt any of these animals, he will submit to any punishment.

Luc. J. Tr. 42 καὶ τοῦτο μὲν ἄπασι

ZVÍŘECÍ KULT

In Egypt, though, besides the universal worship of water, Memphis has a private cult of the ox, Pelusium of the onion, other cities of the ibis or the crocodile, others again of baboon, cat, or monkey. Nay, the very villages have their specialities: one deifies the right shoulder, and another across the river the left; one a half skull, another an earthenware bowl or platter. Come, my fine fellow, is it not all ridiculous?

- ► JUV. 1.26-29
- cum pars Niliacae plebis, cum uerna Canopi
 - Crispinus Tyrias umero reuocante lacernas
 - uentilet aestiuum digitis sudantibus aurum
 - nec sufferre queat maioris pondera gemmae,

- When a pleb from the Nile, when a slave from Canopus,
- One Crispinus, hitching his Tyrian cloak on his shoulder,
- Wafts the gold of summer about on his sweaty fingers,
- Simply unable to suffer the dreadful weight of a gem;

- Juv. 15 Quis nescit, Volusi Bithynice, qualia demens Aegyptos portenta colat? crocodilon adorat pars haec, illa pauet saturam serpentibus ibin.
 effigies sacri nitet aurea cercopitheci, dimidio magicae resonant ubi Memnone chordae 5 atque uetus Thebe centum iacet obruta portis.
 illic aeluros, hic piscem fluminis, illic oppida tota canem uenerantur, nemo Dianam.
- WHO knows not, O Bithynian Volusius, what monsters demented Egypt worships? One district adores the crocodile, another venerates the Ibis that gorges itself with snakes. In the place where magic chords are sounded by the truncated Memnon, and ancient hundred-gated Thebes lies in ruins, men worship the glittering golden image of the long-tailed ape. In one part cats are worshipped, in another a river fish, in another whole townships venerate a dog; none adore Diana,

 Juv. 15 porrum et caepe nefas uiolare et frangere morsu (o sanctas gentes, quibus haec nascuntur in hortis numina!), lanatis animalibus abstinet omnis but it is an impious outrage to crunch leeks and onions with the teeth. What a holy race to have such divinities springing up in their gardens! No animal that grows wool may appear upon the dinner-table; it is forbidden there to slay the young of the goat; but it is lawful to feed on the flesh of man!

mensa, nefas illic fetum iugulare capellae:

carnibus humanis uesci licet.

- Juv 15 labitur hic quidam nimia formidine cursum praecipitans capiturque. ast illum in plurima sectum frusta et particulas, ut multis mortuus unus sufficeret, totum corrosis ossibus edit uictrix turba, nec ardenti decoxit aeno aut ueribus, longum usque adeo tardumque putauit expectare focos, contenta cadauere crudo.
- Hereupon one of them, over-afraid and hurrying, tripped and was caught; the conquering host cut up his body into a multitude of scraps and morsels, that one dead man might suffice for everyone, and devoured it bones and all. There was no stewing of it in boiling pots, no roasting upon spits; so slow and tedious they thought it to wait for a fire, that they contented themselves with the corpse uncooked!

- Juv 15 Maeotide saeuior ara Aegyptos.
- qua nec terribiles Cimbri nec
 Brittones umquam
 Sauromataeque truces aut inmanes
 Agathyrsi,

hac saeuit rabie inbelle et inutile uolgus

paruula fictilibus solitum dare uela phaselis et breuibus pictae remis incumbere testae.

- But Egypt is more savage than the Maeotid altar;
- No dread Cimbrians or Britons, no savage Scythians or monstrous
 Agathyrsians ever raged so furiously as this unwarlike and worthless rabble that hoists tiny sails on crockery ships, and plies puny oars on boats of painted earthenware!
